Sewa Bharti Jaipur Annual Celebration

Honourable Shri Dattatreya Hosabale Ji, Sarkaryavah of the Rashtriya Swayamsevak Sangh (RSS), emphasised that the purpose of Sewa goes beyond providing basic facilities to those in need. It must also foster a sense of self-respect, self-reliance and the spirit of initiative among them. Sewa should empower its recipients to eventually become providers of Sewa themselves. He urged socially and economically privileged sections of society to visit Sewa Bastis, engage with their residents and build meaningful relationships based on mutual trust and a sense of belonging. He started that 257 Sewa Bastis have been identified in Jaipur. There is a need to work in these areas towards education, healthcare, self-reliance, security and self-respect. RSS karyakarta began using the term 'Sewa Basti' instead of 'Malin Basti' (slum) with the vision of viewing these areas not merely through the lens of deprivation, but as centres of Sewa and social responsibility.

Sunanda Tai Patwardhan

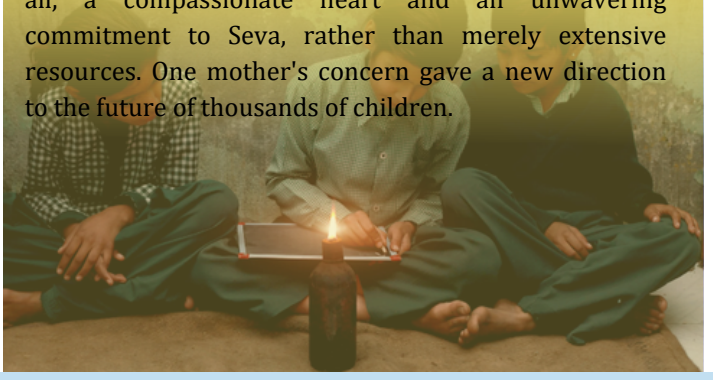

One Mother's Compassion Transformed Thousands of Lives

Witnessing children in slum settlements struggling with a lack of education deeply moved a mother's heart. This concern eventually evolved into a 50-year-long journey of dedicated Seva. Late Sunanda Tai Patwardhan devoted her life to children's education, women's self-reliance and the development of the Vanvasi community.

She worked towards providing education to children in the settlements of Thane and enabling their mothers to become self-reliant. She also established Pragati Pratishthan. Subsequently, she initiated savings groups, handicraft-based cottage industries and Anganwadi centres in the tribal areas of Jawhar. Through her efforts, more than 300 children benefited from the nutrition programme, while over 3,000 farmers began cultivating more than one crop.

Honoured with 24 prestigious awards, Sunanda Tai handed over the responsibility of the organisation to the next generation upon the completion of its 50 years.

Although she is no longer among us, the journey of Seva initiated by her continues uninterrupted through Pragati Pratishthan. The life story of Sunanda Tai teaches us that bringing about change requires, above all, a compassionate heart and an unwavering commitment to Seva, rather than merely extensive resources. One mother's concern gave a new direction to the future of thousands of children.
